Sunday School Awards.

One year ago Superintendent W. O. Hinton of the Paris Christian Church Sunday school offered to each pupil who attended regularly the Sunday school services for the year without being absent, an elegant gold pin emblematic of the cross. The awards were made to the following pupils:

Misses Mary Snider, Minerva Rice, Nannie Bruce Miller and Elizabeth Miller, and Masters Clarence Long, Lou Kniffin Howard, Willie Chisholm, Lyons Board, Ellis Hayden and Ray Galbraith. Miss Nannie Bruce Miller has not missed a Sunday in two years and her sister, Miss Elizabeth Miller has attended regularly each Sunday for three years. Honorable mention was made of four others who were present for nine consecutive months, eight for six months and fourteen for three months. The Sunday school numbers more than three hundred enrolled pupils.

Articles of Incorporation Adopted

The Hospital League met Friday at 2 o'clock p. m. at the court house and transacted much important business. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. W. O. Hinton, vice president of the League.

Articles of incorporation which had been previously prepared were read and discussed, section by section, and finally adopted as a whole and will be forwarded to the Secretary of State at Frankfort.

It is proposed to capitalize the institution at $15,000, divided into six hundred shares, two hundred of which are represented in cash now on hand, amounting to $2,000, and pledges from Hon. John T. Hinton for $1,000, and the Bourbon County Medical Society, which is pledged to contribute $3,000. This will leave the amount to be raised by popular subscription at $10,000 divided into 400 $25 shares.

The membership of the league is now practically 100 members, each of whom armed with a paper will endeavor to secure pledges for four shares of stock. The work of soliciting will be begun in earnest, as it is planned to begin the work of erecting the building in the early spring.

Tariff on Linotypes.

Twenty-six petitions from newspaper and printers were presented in the House of Representatives on January 3d against the tariff on linotype machines. The petitions were referred to the committee on Ways and Means, where they will repose in a pigeon hole until Congress adjourns, under the trust fostering care of the standpatters who run the Republican machine. Linotype machines are not specifically mentioned in the present tariff law, but are taxed 45 per cent. under the general provision for all articles composed wholly or in part of iron or steel. If this tariff tax on the necessary machinery for newspaper publishers was abolished, there is no doubt that the competition of foreign-made type machines would force down the present exorbitant price of American-made machines to nearly one-half and perhaps much less.

As it has been semi-officially announced that there will be no extra session of the next Congress and that no attempt will be made to revise the tariff, the general feeling that tariff revision is necessary evidently has no effect on our standpat statesmen. The same authority, however, evidently fearing the wrath of an outraged people, indicates that the next national Republican convention will adopt a plank with a promise to revise the tariff "after election." Even if that promise is kept it postpones revision until 1900 or 1910. But if the Republicans succeed in electing the next President and a majority of Congress, will not the standpat leaders consider their success as an endorsement of the protective system and refuse to meddle with the sacred schedules? Or as was proposed at the last session by Congressman McClary in his bill, which was prepared under the direction of the Protective Tariff League, by adding a maximum rate to the present schedules -- that is, revise the tariff higher. In any event Republican success would stiffen the backs of the Trust controlled Senate.

Does anyone believe that there is any intention by the Republican leaders to revise the tariff lower? Their constant preaching for the past 40 years has been protectionism and having thus converted a large majority of their party to believe that it is a cardinal doctrine, how could they turn around and throw protection overboard?

"After You."

Several weeks ago the House by a vote of 188 to 106, declined to increase the salaries of the members of the cabinet, justices of the Supreme court, senators and representatives. The members of that body actually felt that salaries ought to be increased, and fully believed the Senate would take action in the matter if the House failed to. For some reason or other a majority of them seemed to think that if the House brought the matter before the country and it met with proper approval, the Senate would certainly take advantage of the popular sentiment, and go one step farther. Such expectations were not fully realized, for the Senate voted only to increase the salaries of the cabinet members and justices; it took only half the step expected, leaving the House to make the next move. The Senate and the House thus appear to be enacting "after you my dear Alphonse."

Such deference may suit the solons at Washington, but it does not appeal to the people throughout the country. If the salaries paid cabinet members, justices and congressmen are incommensurate with the value and importance of service rendered, they should be increased until the deal is a square one. As a matter of fact, there would be no hesitation on the part of either senators or representatives to do so, if their consciences were entirely clear; but they know full well, that they have been suspected, and not wholly without cause, of having attempted to serve more than one master at a time. Conscious of this, they must first feel the public pulse, and then divide responsibility. There's method in this "after you" business, and reason, too. The gentlemen at Washington understand that the people are not fools.

Roosevelt's Many Titles.

President Roosevelt has been dubbed with more titles than any president of the United States. Some of these are satirical, while some convey the honest admiration of the chrishteners. He has been called "Roosevelt the Resolute" by his admirers, and by those who are not so friendly he has been dubbed with the title of "Roosevelt, Rex" because of his alleged imperialistic leanings, and "Roosevelt, the Meddlesome." It has remained for foreign potentate, however, to thrust over Mr. Roosevelt the glamor of the highest flown title of all. In a letter received from the Sultan of Morocco, in which that monarch's gratitude was expressed for the appointment of Samuel R. Cummer as American Minister, the President was addressed as "The Beloved, The Most Cherished, The Exalted, the Most Gracious Friend, the Most Honored and Excellent President of the Republic of the United States of America, who is a pillar of its Great Influence and the Director of its Most Important Affairs, the Most Celebrated Preserver of the Ties of True Friendship, the Faithful, Theodore Roosevelt." The President is said to have resembled the advertisements for a popular dentrifice when he read this florid message. It is not likely that the title will be used in future in any of the state documents.

Railroad Safety Appliances.

The recent terrible accident at Terra Cotta, and minor accidents of a similar character in other parts of the country have tended to emphasize the fact that railroad safety appliances must be operated under proper conditions if they perform their work well. For instance, they must be in charge of competent men, by experience fitted to operate them. They must be used in accordance with rules formulated for securing the desired results. There must not be too many trains on one track, and these trains must not exceed a certain speed limit. Above all two trains going in opposite directions on the same track must not be allowed to get too near each other. In other words railroad safety appliances will do the work they are designed to do if they are operated in the proper manner.

The Maryland grand jury did not hold an inexperienced operator alone responsible for the Terra Cotta accident; the jury looked higher and fastened responsibility on men whose duty it is to see that competent men are placed in responsible positions, that the methods of the system are observed, that the rules of the road are followed. In this case an effort was made to place the responsibility where it rightfully belonged; and, if similar effort were made in each and every railroad accident, there would be fewer accidents and less said about railroad safety appliances not operating satisfactorily. Let a few presidents of railroads be indicted, and there will be something doing in the way of properly equipped railroads with men as well as appliances. Let us go at the root of the matter.

The Simple Life.

A good deal of advice is constantly being heedlessly given about what to do and how to, what to eat and what not to eat--all this and more until the mind becomes as troubled as the ocean in a storm. But the following is too good to overlook, as told by the Baltimore American: "Centenarians give various reasons to which they ascribe their longevity, but it is significant that they all agree on the advantage of plenty of work and little worry in aiding length of life. The advice given by a woman over 100 is worth considering, as she advises one to eat when hungry, sleep when sleepy with plenty of sleep, to work constantly, keep cheerful and avoid worry. This puts in a few words the doctrine of simple life, and her conclusion is worthy of an ancient sage when she says that if these rules will not produce health and long life there is bad blood in the family and it had better die out."

Can Thank Themselves.

Those who remember the Granger uprising in the 70's and the ultimate enactment of the anti-trust and corporation legislation are likely to see it repeated this year and in the future with such greater effect. The legislatures of all the Western States will have drastic propositions before them to curb the railroads and the trusts and the Wall Street financiers of the Harriman type can thank themselves if the Grangers pinch them all they know how.

Enumerated.

A schoolteacher says this sweeping answer was made by a pupil in a history lesson:
"How many wars," she asked this pupil, "did England fight with Spain?"
"Six," the pupil answered.
"Six?" said the teacher. "Enumerate them, please."
"One, two, three, four, five, six," said the little girl.

Sincerity.

The only conclusive evidence of a man's sincerity is that he gives himself for a principle. Words, money, all things else, are comparatively easy to give away, but when a man makes a gift of his daily life and practice it is plain that the truth, whatever it may be, has possession of him.—James Russell Lowell.

She'd Keep It.

"But can you keep house?" he asked doubtfully, for he was, above all things, a practical man.
"If you get a house and put it in my name," she replied promptly, "I'll keep it all right enough."
Matters being thus satisfactorily settled, their engagement was announced.—Judge.

Good Reason.

Traveler (to valet)—That's a rather large statue, Pat. Pat—Yes, sor. They tell me the hand is eleven inches wide. Traveler—I wonder why they didn't make it twelve inches? Pat—Because they didn't want to make it into a foot.—London Mail.

Her Mourning.

Maud—Why is that lady over the way always in black? Is she mourning for any one? Bess—Yes, a husband. Maud—I didn't know she'd been married. Bess—No, but she's mourning for a husband all the same.

Of Course.

Professor (a little distracted)—I'm glad to see you. How's your wife?
"I regret it, professor, but I'm not married."
"Ah, yes. Then of course your wife's still single."—Fliegende Blätter.

A Broken Cup.

Signora Veronelli (seeking a servant)—Why were you sent away from your last place?
"Because I broke a coffee cup."
"Was that the only reason?"
"Certainly, except that on that occasion my mistress had a little wound on the head."—Il Riso.

Like All the Rest.

"I suppose," said the curious old lady to the driver of the city sprinkling cart, "that you only follow this business for the money there is in it?"
"Yes, madam," said the driver of the cart; "I frankly confess I am out for the dust."—Baltimore American.

This is the law of benefits between men: The one ought to forget at once what he has given and the other ought never to forget what he has received.—Seneca.

WORKS OF A WATCH.

All the Parts Are but the Expression of One Idea.

To one who has never studied the mechanism of a watch its mainspring or the balance wheel is a mere piece of metal. He may have looked at the face of the watch, and while he admires the motions of its hands and the time it keeps he may have wondered in idle amazement as to the character of the machinery which is concealed within. Take it to pieces and show him each part separately, and he will recognize neither design nor adaptation nor relation between them, but put them together, set them to work, point out the offices of each spring, wheel and cog, explain their movements and then show him the result. Now he perceives that it is all one design; that, notwithstanding the number of parts, their diverse forms and various offices and the agents concerned, the whole piece is of one idea. He now rightly concludes that when the mainspring was fashioned and tempered its relation to all the other parts must have been considered; that the cogs on this wheel are cut and regulated—adapted—to the ratchets on that, etc., and his final conclusion will be that such a piece of mechanism could not have been produced by chance, for the adaptation of the parts is such as to show it to be according to design and obedient to the will of one intelligence.

Fifty Miles to Market.

It is not an uncommon thing in France to see a farmer forty or fifty miles from home in wet weather with a load. If he sees a prospect of a three days' rain, he puts his tapestries over his load, a cover over his horses and a waterproof coat on and starts off to market. He may go fifty miles before he finds a market that suits him, or he may know in advance just where he is going. You do not often see anybody driving fifty miles through a rainstorm in the United States to find a market for a load of hay, but it is not uncommon to see farmers' wagons forty or fifty miles from home in France. They choose the wet weather for that purpose. Their roads are just as good then as at any time.

The Chinese.

Conservative historians among the Chinese claim for their race an antiquity of at least 100,000 years, while those whose estimates are a little "wild" assert that the Chinese were the original inhabitants of the earth and that Chinese history goes back at least 500,000 years. The government records of China place the foundation of the empire at 2500 B. C. and claim that it was established by Tobi, who, they assert, is the Noah mentioned in the book of Genesis, B. C. 2240.

Defective plumbing permits the entrance into the house of sewer gas bearing germs of contagious disease to which the human system readily succumbs. Whose Say-so is Best?

With nearly all medicines put up for sale through druggists, one has to take the maker's say-so alone as to their curative value. Of course, such testimony is not that of a disinterested party and accordingly is not to be given the same credit as if written from disinterested motives. Dr. Pierce's medicines, however, form a single and therefore striking exception to this rule. Their claims to the confidence of invalids does not rest solely upon their makers' say-so or praise. Their ingredients are matters of public knowledge, being printed on each separate bottle wrapper. Thus invalid sufferers are taken into Dr. Pierce's full confidence. Scores of leading medical men have written enough to fill volumes in praise of the curative value of the several ingredients entering into these well-known medicines.

Amongst these writers we find such medical lights as Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago; Prof. Hale, of the same city; Prof. John M. Seuder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Prof. John King, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Dr. Grover Coo, of New York; Dr. Bartholow, of Jefferson Medical College, of Pa., and scores of others equally eminent.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the worst cases of female weakness, nervousness, and retroversion, and corrects irregularities, cures painful periods, dries up disagreeable and weakening drains, sometimes known as pelvic catarrh, and a multitude of other diseases peculiar to women. Bear in mind it is not a patent nor even a secret medicine, but the "Favorite Prescription" of a regularly educated physician, of large experience in the cure of women's peculiar ailments, who frankly and confidently takes his patients into his full confidence by telling them just what his "Prescription" is composed of. Of no other medicine put up for women's special maladies and sold through druggists, can it be said that the maker is not afraid to deal thus frankly, openly and honestly, by letting every patient using the same know exactly what she is taking.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is guarded as sacredly secret and womanly confidences are protected by professional privacy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

How to preserve health and beauty is told in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. It is free. For a paper-covered copy send Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps to cover mailing only; in cloth binding 31 stamps.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure constipation.

Buys Fine Dog.

J. W. Bacon purchased last week "Black Lady" from James Rawlings, of Fleming county, for $50. This is considered one of the finest pointer bitches in Kentucky. She is jet black and beautifully trained for the field.

The Parson and the Light.

A parson had had a call from a little country parish to a large and wealthy one in a big city. He asked time for prayer and consideration. He did not feel sure of his light. A month passed. Some one met his youngest son. "How is it Josiah, is your father going to B—?" "Well," answered the youngster judiciously, "paw is still prayin' for light, but most of the things is packed."

In the Year 2407 A. D.

"What will man be in 500 years?" That is the question that is agitating scientists of England and America. In addition to this there has been much speculation as to what his surroundings will be, and what turns his marvelous mental development will take. It is conceded by those who are inclined to dabble with the future, that the men of ages coming will sacrifice the body for the brain. Little exercise will be taken, as locomotion will be principally by the aid of airships and moving sidewalks. A journey around the world, it is thought, will be no more than a flight through the air.

It is also surmised that the man of the future will care nothing for feasts and banquets, and that these things and a Pure Food act will be unknown. His nourishment will consist of the concentrated extracts of the best food, prepared according to the formulas of advanced chemistry, and each meal, no doubt, will be confined within the limits of a single pill. Food elements to prepare a man for a certain kind of work will be one of the specialties. It is also thought that the style will revert to something like the style of the ancient Greeks or Romans.

There is a diversity of opinion as to the manner of habitation 500 years from now. H. G. Wells, an English writer who is inclined to look ahead a little, believes that in the year 2,000, the cities of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia will have about 40,000,000 inhabitants each, while London, Paris, Berlin and St. Petersburg will have about 20,000,000 citizens. The question of housing this number of people will be a large one, but it is the opinion of this same writer that, while these cities will not cover a great deal more area than they do at present, they will rise to a height undreamed of today. Buildings of 125 and 150 stories will be common, each one of which will be capable of holding 60,000 or 70,000 people.

The modern elevators will give way to pneumatic tubes and flying machines, and, it is thought, a great many people will not set foot on the earth at all, except for occasional pleasure trips. It is expected that the building operations of the future will be conducted largely in glass, which is even now being advocated to take the place of the common clay bricks.

It is predicted that the electrical age, which only seems to have begun in the present era, is doomed to pass, and that the air we now breathe will be sufficient for the wants of all men. Such persons even see, towering above the buildings of the future, immense chimneys that will suck down the air from miles above the earth, extract from it all its potential elements, causing them to make light, heat and ventilation, and then, through another set of chimneys, puff out the exhaust. In that age, the New York man who wishes to send a letter to China, will merely step outside this door, drop it into a slot, with the knowledge that it will reach its destination on the other side of the world in a few minutes or at an hour at the most. Market gardening, it is expected will be conducted largely under glass, and there will be enormous forcing houses, where crops will be grown to an immense height and multiplied fruitfulness.

So the year 2407 is expected to see a land which no railroad trains will cross, where no factory chimneys will mar the beauty of the landscape, and a sea from which all vessels will long since have disappeared. There will be no more of commerce the wise forecasters say, because the day of individual fortunes and laboring for individual gain will have passed.

Good Receipt For Rats.

A farmer who has tried the experiment says: "If you will sprinkle sulphur on the barn floor and through your corn as you gather there will not be a rat or mouse bother it. I have done this for several years and have never been bothered with rats or mice. In stacking hay or oats sprinkle a little on the ground and on each load, and my word for it, rats or mice can't stay there. A pound of sulphur will be sufficient to preserve a large bin of corn and is good for stock and will not hurt the corn for bread."

New Variety of Wheat.

A new variety of wheat has been discovered in Mexico which is said to be immune from attacks of the wheat rust. The United States Department of Agriculture is greatly interested in the discovery, and steps will probably be taken to have the wheat introduced in this country. The Mexican Agricultural Society has just issued a report concerning the new wheat, which is said to have been grown in the State of San Luis Potosi, Mexico, for several years with great success. The rust immune wheat is from seed that was originally imported from Argentina.

Pooled Tobacco.

As the Burley Tobacco Society is an incorporated body with power to sue and be sued, the owners of tobacco who have signed contracts pledging their tobacco to that body, cannot now sell to the Trust without danger of suits against seller and the buyer. A Circuit Judge in western Kentucky before whom the matter was recently brought, decided that the pledged tobacco was in the hands of the society when it was pooled and that the grower could not legally sell it. The question as to whether one member of the pool may sell to another, the crop to remain pooled is one that has not yet been officially settled.

Found Her Brother Though a Dream.

Through a dream about a "boy in blue" Miss Cora Dawson, of Carmi, Ill., has found a long lost brother. He is Private William A. Dawson, of the Third U. S. artillery. The other day he met the three sisters he had never seen since he was a baby. Miss Cora Dawson wrote to the war department after her strange dream. She received an answer to her query about Dawson, stating that there was such a man in the service of Uncle Sam and that he was stationed at Seattle, Wash. Dawson was communicated with and the reunion followed.

Honest Boy Returns a "Lemon."

A messenger boy in the employ of the Postal Telegraph company, in New York city, recently returned a "lemon" to the cashier of J. Pierpont Morgan's banking house, in that city. He received an envelope from the house containing $2, as a reward for saving the sum of $67,000. He thanked the company for the "lemon," as he called it, and returned the gift to the cashier. The boy found an envelope in front of the banking house containing $60,000 in bonds and $7,000 in currency and returned them to the office of Mr. Morgan. He says he did not know that "lemons" came from Mr. Morgan in that shape, as he had expected a round hundred for his honesty.

Men's suits at Twin Bros., $3.98.

Humpty Dumpty.

James Bonelli, the comedian who plays the part of the clown in Humpty Dumpty at the Opera House Friday evening is a young actor who has won considerable fame as a comedian, having appeared in such well known musical comedies as Fantasma, Devil's Auction and Eight Bells. He has been an acrobat since his fifth year and his father and grandfather were acrobats before him. Humpty Dumpty gives Mr. Bonelli a good change to introduce his droll eccentric comedy for which he has become noted. He is surrounded by an all-star company of singers, dancers, comedians and acrobats and a strong chorus of pretty girls. This is a comedy pantomime which can really boast of a plot of intense interest, full of comedy, wonderful electrical effects, and beautiful scenery. The comedy is bright and sparkling; the action, terse, vivid and rapid, the musical numbers are bright and catchy; the chorus of pretty girls are all clever singers and dancers, while the specialties, six in number, are all feature acts.

Dickson & Mustard carry nearly three tons of beautiful scenery and wardrobe, all new this season. This, without a doubt, will be the strongest singing and most beautifully dressed chorus of young ladies, and the grandest scenic show playing here this year.

Dogs Killing Sheep.

The warm weather of the last few weeks has been very favorable to the flocks of sheep throughout the county. Wolves are dropping their lambs, and having an abundance of green grass, year and wheat upon which to graze, the lambs are doing better than for years at this season. Dogs have become very annoying however, and the farmers are up in arms at the constant visitation to their flocks, resulting in both ewes and lambs being killed. J. Vol Ferguson, of Centerville neighborhood, has lost a number by dogs, as has James E. Gray.

The leading brand of flour now sold is the Red Cross made by E. F. Spears & Sons.

Plot to Seize Carnes.

It is reported that there was a plot among a set of desperate men at Jackson to attempt the intimidation of Judge William Carnes, Special Judge in the Hargis case, when he returned there to adjourn the special term of court. The plan was to shoot around the Judge and under his feet and order him not to return again to Jackson. The decision of the Court of Appeals together with the urging of some of the more level-headed, is said to have prevented the carrying out of the demonstration against Judge Carnes. It is agreed by all sides that it will be necessary to have soldiers before this case can be proceeded with there.

Local Option Advocates Meet and Organize.

A meeting of the advocates of local option was held Friday night in the offices of J. S. Wilson & Bro., and partial organization made for their fight against the saloons. There were twenty-one present, including lawyers, doctors and ministers.

The meeting organized by the election of Wm. Myall as chairman and J. S. Wilson as secretary.

Several attorneys who are interested in the cause of temperance were called upon for an expression of opinion as to the probable outcome of the cases now pending before the Court of Appeals, the decision of which will have an important bearing upon the movement in Bourbon.

Some voiced the opinion that it would be better to await that decision, which might sustain the contention that Paris being a fourth class city, the county could not as a unit vote upon the question, thus confining the vote to the city itself.

A majority, however, thought the time opportune to test the question by a vote of the people whether it was on a vote of the county as a unit or confined to the city proper.

In accordance therewith an executive committee was appointed consisting of Wm. Myall, chairman; and Messrs. W. O. Hinton, J. S. Wilson, C. Arnsperger and Robert C. Talbott to prepare the form of two petitions, one to be circulated for signatures as if the vote was to be taken in the county as a unit, and the other confining the vote to the city of Paris. It is proposed to have the election called for a date the result of which if favorable to the cause of the local option will prevent the renewal of all saloon licenses May 1st, at which time they expire. It is expected that the necessary signatures to the petitions can be secured within thirty days, and as the election not earlier than sixty days after the filing of the petition it will be seen that the probably day upon which the vote will be taken will be about April 20th.

This famous bull, will at once give Mr. Haggin's herd a national reputation, and will add to the fame of Elmendorf.

Railroads Lose Heavily.

The situation with the railroads in Cincinnati is the most serious since 1884. Practically no freight is hauled and the passenger service is badly crippled. The loss to the roads centering into Cincinnati will run up to nearly a million dollars in the aggregate because of the inability to handle freight, and the extra expense in the operation of the passenger service. The existing situation at the Grand Central Station has demonstrated the urgent necessity of having a new passenger station that will be beyond the reach of the flood.

Mercer Tobacco Growers Split.

The tobacco growers of Mercer county are badly split over the selection of the location for the rehandling house, and it is likely that, instead of storing their tobacco at home, the most of it will be shipped to Lexington and Cincinnati.

Terrific Wind Storm.

Charges Against Bailey.

Charges, embraced in thirty-two separate counts, were filed against Senator J. W. Bailey yesterday in the Texas Legislature. His friends announced that they will insist on a vote for Senator today, saying that if the accusations are substantiated he can then resign his seat at Washington.

Uncle Sam Insulted By John Bull

Rear Admiral Davis' mission, of mercy to stricken Kingston came to an abrupt and painful conclusion Saturday in consequence of Gov. Swettenham's objection to the presence of American sailors engaged in the work of clearing the streets, guarding property and succoring the wounded and sick, culminating in a letter to the Admiral peremptorily requesting him to re-embark all parties that had been landed.

Powder Car Explosion.

Nearly two score are believed to have lost their lives in the accident on the Big Four railroad at Sandford, Ind., where a car of powder on a siding exploded while an accommodation passenger train was passing. Twenty-two bodies have been recovered from the debris, while parts of corpses found in the vicinity lead the officials to the belief that the casualties will be nearly twice that. No conclusive explanation can be furnished as to the cause of the explosion.

Cable on Elevator Breaks.

The cable of the passenger elevator at the Phoenix Hotel, Lexington, suddenly broke about 10 o'clock Sunday night, when the car loaded with men and women, had reached the third floor, and the cage and its occupants crashed swiftly down to the first floor, where it brought up with a bump which piled the passengers in a yelling, struggling heap. No one was injured beyond receiving a severe jolt and being drenched with ice water, which a bell-boy in the car was carrying to a room. There were only seven persons on the elevator, and it is not known what caused the cable to break.

Only Two of Committee Snowed Up.

The meeting of the committee appointed by Vice-President James McClure to raise the amount designated for Bourbon, $733.15, for the Kentucky display at Jamestown Exposition, didn't materialize. The above amount had to be raised this week, so we fear Bourbon will not lend a helping hand. Mayor James O'Brien and Hon. C. M. Thomas were the only members present at the meeting called for yesterday. The following persons were appointed as members of the committee: Judge Denis Dundon, Mayor James M. O'Brien, Buckner Woodford, Wm. Myall, John J. McClintock, George Alexander, Claude M. Thomas, J. G. Allen, J. F. McDaniel, John T. Collins, George W. Dawson, Mrs. Col. E. F. Clay, Mrs. Alice J. Anderson, Miss Elizabeth Grimes, Mrs. Bruce Smith, T. W. Current, J. Vol Ferguson, M. R. Jacoby and L. A. Soper.

All of the surrounding counties have taken the matter up and made liberal donations. The Commercial Club of Winchester gave $500 yesterday.

Georgetown Pike Caved In.

The Georgetown pike has within the last few days been impassable about one and a half mile from Georgetown by reason of the cave-in and general wash-out caused by the recent rains. All travelers have been compelled to take the Lemon's Mill pike, turning them several miles out of their way to get to Georgetown. The metal has been washed down a foot or more in and about that city and in many places is completely gone.

Lexington Tobacco Sales.

About 55,000 pounds of tobacco were sold at the Lexington warehouses yesterday. Only two houses held sales. At the Burley Loose Tobacco Warehouse 40,000 pounds were sold, prices ranging from $5 to $14. The Growers Warehouse sold 15,000 pounds, prices from $4 to $11.25. The Shelburn warehouse will hold big sales today.

Fruit and Wheat Crop Too Far Advanced.

The recent Spring-like weather brought out the fruit buds in abundance and caused the wheat to make such rapid growth that considerable apprehension exists among the farmers in regard to the wheat and fruit crops. They fear the severe cold weather that is now beginning to show up will kill everything. Strawberry beds in some section of the county have been in bloom.

Long Live the King!

Is the popular cry throughout European countries; while in America, the cry of the present day is "Long live Dr. King's New Discovery, King of Throat and Lung Remedies!" of which Mrs. Julia Ryder Paine, Truro, Mass., says: "It never fails to give immediate relief and to quickly cure cough or cold." Mrs. Paine's opinion is shared by a majority of the inhabitants of this country. There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circular and testimonials. Address: F. J. FAMOUS GAMBLERS.

Old Time London Betting Clubs and Their Members.

There were three principal clubs—White's, Brookes' and Roodles'. White's was originally a "chocolate house" in William III's time, but became a private club early in the eighteenth century and was used by the Tories. It was a club always noted for high play and betting, and very curious some of their bets were. The old wager book being still preserved. Brookes' was the Whig club and was then conducted by that Liberal Brookes, whose speculative skill is a hasty credit and a distant bill; who, nursed in clubs, disdained a vulgar trade. Exults to trust and blushes to be paid.

Among the members of this club were the Prince of Wales, and, of course, his fidus Achates, Sheridan, besides the great Charles James Fox, who here played deeply and whose name is oft recorded in the wager book, which, however, is of older date and was kept when the club was held at Almack's. "Lord Northington bets Mr. C. Fox, June 4, 1774, that he (Mr. C. F.) is not called to the bar before this day four years." "March 11, 1775, Lord Bollingbroke gives a guinea to Mr. Charles Fox and is to receive a thousand from him whenever the debt of this county amounts to £171,000. Mr. Fox is not to pay the £1,000 till he is one of his majesty's cabinet." "April 7, 1791, Mr. Sheridan bets Lord Lauderdale and Lord Thanet 25 guineas each that parliament will not consent to any more lotteries after the present one voted to be drawn in February next."—From "The Dawd of the Nineteenth Century," by John Ashton.

HE DIED FIGHTING.

How Prince Louis Napoleon Was Killed by the Zulus.

How Prince Louis Napoleon was killed by the Zulus June 1, 1879, is told graphically in the book by Sir Evelyn Wood, who took part in that war. The little party which the prince accompanied was surprised and attacked. Sir Evelyn writes: "The Zulus in pursuit ran first after the two white soldiers who were on the flanks, three or four men, headed by Labanga, following the prince. His horse had jumped just as he was mounting, and his sword fell out of its scabbard. He was very active and was vaulting on his horse in motion when the wallet on the front of the saddle broke away, and he fell to the ground, being at this time only sixty yards behind the (British) fugitives. There were seven men who actually fought the prince. When Langabete, pursuing the fugitives, first saw Labanga, he was running away from the prince, who was rushing at him. Labanga, crouching in the grass, threw an assegai at him. The first assegai stuck in the prince's thigh, and, withdrawing it from the wound, he kept his foes at bay for some minutes. In the native's words: 'He fought like a lion. He fired two shots, but without effect, and I threw an assegai at him, which struck him, as I said at the time, but I always allowed Labanga's claim to have killed him, for his assegai hit the prince in the left shoulder, a mortal wound.'"

Some Odd Wills.

One of the oddest documents of the will kind known was that of Queen Austrigilda, consort of King Goutran of Burgundy. The dying princess enjoined upon her husband to slay and bury in the same grave with her the physicians who had attended her. Another will was that of a husband who forbade his wife's marrying on pain of his returning to haunt her. This is quite different from that of a woman who instructed her executors to seek out "some nice, good, pretty girl" who would make an affectionate second wife to her spouse. It is a fact interesting in this connection that the first Napoleon actually bequeathed 10,000 francs to a fellow named Cantillon, who had been tried for attempting the assassination of the Duke of Wellington.

A Problem in Life.

They had met in the subway and in the interval of passing a few stations had fallen to talking of a lovely woman friend who had died.

"How did she die? Do you know?" he asked.

"She nursed a little niece through an infectious disease, then took it herself and died of it," said she.

"A strange Providence!" he mused sadly. "She, lovely, gracious, charming, everything to live for and a blessing to her friends, to die in order that a child might live. A strange and unaccountable Providence!"—New York Press.

Good and Osgood.

The subject of ancestors is often an interesting topic of conversation. A lady extremely proud of her mother's family created a sensation and made her listeners wonder a little when she remarked: "My father filled many responsible positions. We all have the greatest respect for him. My father was a good man, but—and a certain stiffening of the shoulders and an added expression of firmness in the good lady's face added importance to her conclusion—"my mother was an Osgood!"

Man to Blame.

Women are more prone to deceit than men. From the time when Scheherazade told her lord 1,001 lies to keep the peace it has been the accepted way. And the men, not the women, are the most to blame. It is what they like, and they get it.—Good Words.

Rexall "93" HAIR TONIC

In these days when youth is the moving factor—when man has made his mark at thirty-five and is dubbed a "has been" at forty; when business houses pension the man we used to call "middle aged," rather than allow his lagging influence to intrude upon the modern commercial rush—a bald head is a serious handicap.

In the social world it is equally bad for a man, while for a woman—it is fatal.

Few people can afford a bald head. Even those who can—those who are fixed socially, financially and materially—have no wish to do so. But afford it or not, thousands of us are bald, either partially or wholly.

What caused baldness—whether an inherited tendency; whether through undue mental effort, sickness, dandruff or other scalp disease—makes no difference. What we want is HAIR.

Millions of dollars have been spent in vain efforts to grow hair on bald heads. Other millions have been spent in an effort to restore faded gray hair to its natural shade, and still others to banish dandruff. And still dandruff declined to disappear; hair refused to grow; lost tints of brown, blonde and auburn failed to return.

All this, however, is of the past. Failures have given place to success. A real hair tonic has at last been found.

REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC is a positive cure for all hair and scalp troubles. It is not sticky or gummy, will not thicken on hair, does not become rancid, has no disagreeable odor. It is clean, agreeable and pleasant to use.

REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC

Cures all cases of dandruff, itching hair, irritation of the scalp, hair loss, premature falling, sandy growth, and all those annoying affections of the scalp which scientists have found to be due to the presence of microbes. REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC restores the hair by first killing the microbes, by supplying a nutritive food element upon which the injured hairs may feed and regain health and strength by drawing the scalp and strengthening the hair follicles. It assists nature to restore the color by making the hair healthy and enabling it to draw its own coloring matter from the pigment glands in the scalp. It is not a dye.

Remember that dandruff is proof positive that microbes are at work on the roots of your hair. Then is the time to buy a bottle of REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC and begin treatment. Don't wait until you are bald.

"GREATLY ADDS TO BEAUTY."

"I can most highly recommend Rexall '93' Hair Tonic as the best of preparations for the preservation of the hair and the promotion of its healthy growth. It not only preserves the hair and stops it from falling, but it gives it a gloss and sweetness which greatly adds to its beauty. Every woman should use Rexall '93' Hair Tonic as a dressing to the hair if she desires to keep her hair in the best condition."

—Mrs. J. C. Hall, Palmyra, N. Y.

THE STORY OF REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC.

Before placing REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC on the market we realized that we had a formula of exceptional value, and yet we determined to give it a thorough trial before we offered it as a Rexall preparation. We therefore wrote to one hundred druggists in as many cities, asking the name of one customer who suffered from a disease of the hair and scalp. To each of these customers we sent three bottles of the hair tonic and asked them to try it and report upon it.

THE RESULT: Five reported no answer, two reported adversely and NINETY-THREE sent enthusiastic reports of the remedy and gave details of the splendid effect in each individual case.

We therefore selected "NINETY-THREE" HAIR TONIC, as the name of this preparation, which we believe to be the best. Could any other name be so significant of merit? Any test have been more fair? Any results more encouraging?

In buying REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC you take no chances whatever. If after a trial you are not more than satisfied we will promptly and cheerfully refund your money.

COROT'S RUSTIC HABITS.

How the Artist Came to Live the Life of a Peasant.

Corot's father was a little, dry, thin old man, whose correct appearance, precise gestures and short speech were in singular contrast to the geniality and jovial ways of Camille. He was the typical business man. He wished his son to go into business and apprenticed him to a wholesale cloth merchant. Camille, who dreamed only of painting, conceived a violent aversion to commerce and seized every opportunity to escape from the shop and go up to his room to copy drawings. His employer was very dissatisfied with him and complained to his father, who reprimanded him severely. At last one day the young man did not go to business and told his father that he must follow his vocation, even if it brought him misery. Seeing that nothing could alter this decision, "Very well," the father answered, "I will give you 1,200 francs annually—not a centime more—and you will make the best you can of it."

Camille leaped for joy. He immediately made preparations for departure, left home and installed himself in the little hamlet of Morvan, at a farmer's whose numerous family was crowded into the only room, which was the forge. Corot there contracted the habits of the peasantry, which he retained ever after. He had no needs, lived only for his art and found complete happiness in it.

For a long time Corot remained at the farmer's, satisfied with the coarse food, happy in his liberty and feeling rich with his modest allowance. Endowed with robust health and being jovial by nature, he always sang while he worked, and his gaiety never deserted him.

At his father's death Corot found himself possessed of a revenue of 40,000 francs, but this opulence did not change his rustic habits. He continued his simple and laborious life. Always up before dawn, he put on the peasant's clothes that he wore all his life, ate his soup, lit his pipe and with his box in his hand and his easel on his shoulder started for his work, his sonorous voice ringing out joyously.—G. Chardin in Putnam's Monthly.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Do something for somebody, and do it now.

Kean's Love Drama.

There was little that was romantic in the first meeting of Kean, the great tragedian, and the woman who was to bear his name. It was on the stage of the Cheltenham theater that Charles Kean and Miss Chambers, a pretty young actress, first saw each other. "Who is that shabby little man with the brilliant eyes?" Miss Chambers asked in the hearing of the king of the stage. "And who," Kean retorted by asking aloud, "is that odd little woman?" From this singularly inauspicious opening Kean's love drama proceeded so swiftly that before a month had gone the curtain was rung down at the altar.

The Huas.

The first mention of the Huas in history is in China, B. C. 210. They conquered that country and were afterward driven out by the Celestials and marched clear across Asia, penetrating the country now known as Hungary in 376 A. D. For a time they threatened to overrun the whole of the continent, but were defeated in the heart of France and driven back to the banks of the Danube.

Ugly Athenian Coins.

It is little surprising that the Athenian coins are less beautiful than some others. They always preserved an affection of archaism. The Attic drachmas bore the head of Athene and on the reverse an owl often standing on a lyre, the whole in a myrtle wreath. Plutarch in his "Lysander" tells an amusing tale how Glippus had been sent to Sparta with a great sum of money as a bribe and how he unripped the bottoms of the sacks and stole large sums, sewing up the sacks again, not knowing that there was a writing in each sack saying how much coin it held. On coming to Sparta he hid his plunder under the tiles of his house, showing the Ephors the unbroken seals on the mouths of the sacks. When the Ephors opened these they were in great perplexity, but Glippus' servant betrayed him, saying "that under the tiles roosted the owls." The consternation was great. Glippus fled, and the stern Spartans declared that for the future they would use iron coinage made red-hot and quenched in vinegar to make it hard and unpliable. In the laws of Solon, 600 B. C., the punishment of death is recorded against forging the coinage.

"DO IT TO-DAY!"

"And to think that ten months ago I looked like this! I owe it to German Syrup."

"The time-worn injunction, 'Never put off till to-morrow what you can do to-day' is now generally presented in this form: 'Do it to-day!' That is the terse advice we want to give you about that hacking cough or demoralizing cold with which you have been struggling for several days, perhaps weeks. Take some reliable remedy for it TO-DAY—and let that remedy be Dr. Boesche's German Syrup, which has been in use for over thirty-five years. A few doses of it will undoubtedly relieve your cough or cold, and its continued use for a few days will cure you completely. No matter how deep-seated your cough, even if dread consumption has attacked your lungs, German Syrup will surely effect a cure—as it has done before in thousands of apparently hopeless cases of lung trouble. New trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists."

'The Woman in the Case.'

If the opinion of one of the greatest experts in criminal law is worth anything, then there is not a lawyer in this city who will fail to see Eugenie Blair at the Paris Grand tonight, in Clyde Fitch's greatest play, "The Woman in the Case." This authority, speaking recently said: "At every big criminal case in New York, the courtroom is crowded to overflowing with people who attend for the excitement and novelty it affords; while lawyers watch every detail from a professional viewpoint. In recalling this fact, I have never, in all my years of experience, seen a criminal case conducted with such perfect regard to the rules of evidence as it is in 'The Woman in the Case.' Here is a criminal case, every whit as exciting as any ever tried in court, and added to that you get more thrills and more knowledge in three hours than you would in a court room in three years. It must be a brilliant lawyer who cannot find a new legal point legal point worth the knowing in 'The Woman in the Case,' and for the young man who hopes to practice law it should be part of his education to see this play."

Negroes Endorse Roosevelt.

Speaking for 50,000 negroes who compose its membership, the Grand Council of the National Industrial Association of America, in convention at Baton Rouge, adopted a resolution endorsing President Roosevelt's action in dismissing the negro soldiers at Brownsville.

Hargis Lost in Big Court.

James Hargis lost at all points before the Court of Appeals, which handed down two opinions Friday in cases in which he is involved. The indictment in Fayette county, charging the Cockrell murder, was held to be good. The court also directed Special Judge Carnes to draw a jury to try the Cox case from the jury wheel and further directed him in trial of the case, although revoking the writ of prohibition directed against him.

Nervy Thieves.

Two stores within less than half a block of the Hammond-street police station in Cincinnati were entered and robbed of $5,000 worth of fine furs.

Chicago and the Railroad.

The railroad companies of the United States are spending $100,000,000 to make the streets of Chicago, Ill., safe. Ten years ago that city decided that the elevation of the steam railway tracks was the only means of protecting her citizens from the deadly grade crossings, where an average of 500 persons were killed each year. The railroad companies are footing the bill. Last year 50,000 men were employed in the work of elevating the tracks. It cost the railroads $5,800,000. Chicago is the only city in the country compelling the steam railways to elevate their tracks and pay the bill for the job. Over 800 miles of these tracks have now been raised, and many miles more remain to be elevated.

Four Kentucky Hangings.

Four men are to be hanged in Kentucky on Friday, February 15 next under judgments of court, the Governor fixing the date for execution. They are Guy Lyon and W. R. Fletcher, of Logan county, convicted of committing criminal assault, and Ben Huffaker, of Lyon county, and Jesse Fitzgerald, of Knox county, sentenced on conviction of murder.

Flood Sufferers.

It is estimated that at least fifteen thousand people are homeless on account of the flooding of the lower sections of Cincinnati and the cities on the Kentucky side of the Ohio at that point. Fully three thousand residents of Newport have been compelled to vacate their homes and all the other cities within ten miles of Cincinnati report thousands more sufferers. The cold weather will now make the suffering more intense. The river was still rising yesterday.

Child Dies of Old Age.

James Anderson died recently in the City hospital, at Minneapolis, Minn. At the time of his death he was 11 years and 2 months of age. So far as the condition of the vital organs determine the age of man he was at least 60 years of age at the time of his birth. When the child was only six years old his hair began to turn gray, his eyesight began to fail and he walked with the deliberate care of a person well advanced in years. His mental faculties were well developed when he was small, but soon failed so that the was little better than a person in his dotage.

Johnny's Easy Money.

Johnny's dog Tige was a nuisance. His pet theory must have been that all things were created to be destroyed—at least, so his practice indicated. Johnny's folks were anxious to get rid of Tige, and at least they decided to work upon the lad's affections with lure.

"Johnny," said his father one day, "I'll give you five dollars if you'll get rid of that dog."

Johnny gasped at the amount, swallowed hard at thought of Tige, and said he would think it over.

The next day at dinner he made the laconic announcement: "Pa, I got rid of Tige."

"Well, I certainly am delighted to hear it," said the father. "Here's your money you've earned it. How did you get rid of the nuisance?"

"Traded him to Bill Simpkins for two yellow pups," answered Johnny.

Another Horrible Railroad Accident.

At least sixteen people were crushed or burned to death Friday in a collision at Fowler, Ind., between a passenger train and a freight on the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis railroad. The collision was caused by the passenger train running by a signal in a dense fog.

The Waterways and Harbors Resolutions.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—At the request of a large number of his fellow members in Congress, Representative Morrell of Pennsylvania has introduced a resolution in the House urging the necessity of an annual appropriation for the development of the waterways of the country. Mr. Morrell's resolution points out the necessity for making this appropriation bill commensurate with the importance of the needs of commerce and declares it should be placed on the same scale as the appropriation bills for the army and navy.

This resolution, which was referred to committee, crystallizes the sentiment that is growing so rapidly in Congress and throughout the country. The resolution reads: "Whereas, the enormous development in late years of the natural resources of the United States and the consequent increase in the production of articles for home consumption and for export has rendered the transportation facilities of the country, especially those by water, entirely inadequate to supply the demand upon them and to accommodate the various types of vessels, which modern skill has constructed, to handle these products, and

"Whereas, further, it is the general belief that the immediate improvement on a large scale of the waterways and harbors of the country would do much to regulate the charges of railroads, therefore be it

"Resolved, That it is the sense and desire of this Congress that the appropriation bill for rivers and harbors shall be given the same consideration and shall be on the same scale as those for the army and navy and other large annual appropriations being necessary to enable the United States to keep pace with the other nations of the world, and being for the good of the country at large, this appropriation shall hereafter be an annual one."

whether the sum of $50,000,000 could be actually expended in the short space of twelve months, for it is doubtful whether the contractors could muster enough men and machinery to accomplish that much work.

However, once the appropriations are coming in regularly, so that contractors can gather under them experienced men and feel assured of steady activity, three will be no difficulty in prosecuting to a successful conclusion a number of great projects planned and approved by the expert engineers of the War Department.

is to provide principally for the marshaling of this great force of experienced workmen that Mr. Morrell's resolution was offered. At the end of four or five years the annual appropriation would average $50,000,000, a sum that the National Rivers and Harbors Congress has contended is absolutely necessary if the great mass of work mapped out by the government engineers is to be accomplished.
